

Autumn International Series

2 – 24 November 2024

England, Ireland, France & Italy

Autumn Internationals 2024

The giants of southern hemisphere rugby – South Africa, New Zealand, Australia and Argentina – will be back touring the northern hemisphere once again in November 2024.

Fans of the four home nations – England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales – can look forward to a month-long festival of rugby with some huge North v South clashes.

England line up with the giants of southern hemisphere rugby scheduled to play at Twickenham on consecutive weekends. The series will begin with a fixture against the New Zealand All Blacks on Saturday 2nd November. Further matches for England against Australia and South Africa are planned for the following two weekends, although the specific dates have yet to be finalised. A fourth match against an as-yet-unnamed team will be played on the weekend of the 23/24 November.

Information regarding tickets for the autumn fixtures is expected to be released in early 2024.

Eddie Jones will make his first visit to Twickenham since being sacked by England when Japan complete this year's autumn line-up.

The All Blacks go to Ireland the weekend after meeting England and then take on France at a venue to be confirmed before ending their Autumn Series in Italy.
